

Denver's Cherry Creek Welcomes First New Hotel in a Decade

August 18, 2016

Developers Sage Hospitality and BMC Investments have opened Halycon, an independent hotel in Denver's chic Cherry Creek shopping district. The 154-room hotel -- which has a rooftop bar and pool, two restaurants and 6,500 square feet of meeting space for events of up to 300 guests -- is Cherry Creek's first new hotel in a decade.

"There has not been a new hotel built in this neighborhood for more than 13 years and there was a distinct need for a modern luxury, independent hotel that truly evokes everything that is Cherry Creek," said Matt Joblon, principal and CEO of BMC Investments. "This part of Denver is evolving so fast in so many positive ways, that it needed a hotel like this as an anchor."

Halcyon leverages Colorado's love for the outdoors by offering an onsite "Gear Garage" program that will help guests experience Denver in unique ways. Complimentary e-bikes and Vespa scooters are available for guests to borrow for exploring nearby downtown Denver, as well as long boards, GoPro cameras, day packs, binoculars and fly-fishing gear for those taking excursions to the Rocky Mountains.

Other unique services include complimentary transportation in the hotel's house Range Rover, a turntable in each room with a curated vinyl collection, and a "Kitchen Counter," with coffee, beer, wine and snacks.

"Halcyon is that friend's incredible house in Colorado you've always wanted to visit," said general manager Cindy Bedan. "Guests who enter our hotel will feel the cultured comfort of the neighborhood and we could not be more excited to bring these elements of Cherry Creek's character to life for all to enjoy."
